Lohmann Animal Health International Promotes Dr. Carol Gibbs

Winslow, Maine (Feb. 9, 2007) — Lohmann Animal Health International (LAHI) has promoted Dr. Carol Gibbs to director of regulatory affairs and quality control.

She is responsible for leading the LAHI team of regulatory specialists to assure compliance with USDA regulations. Her responsibilities also include registration of the company's product line in the global poultry market. Gibbs oversees quality control testing and animal testing facilities for LAHI as well.

A three-year employee of LAHI in Winslow, Maine, Gibbs previously worked in research and development at Lohmann Animal Health in Cuxhaven, Germany.

Gibbs has over 20 years experience in microbiology and infectious diseases, 14 years experience in human and veterinary vaccine development, and 12 years managerial experience.

She earned her Ph.D. degree from Michigan State University, Department of Microbiology and Public Health. Gibbs is a post-doctoral fellow of Max-Planck Institute for Biology in Tuebingen, Germany, and a post-doctoral fellow of Rockefeller University in New York, N.Y. She also is a certified biological safety officer (Germany) and a certified radiation safety officer (Austria).

Based in Winslow, Maine, LAHI is a member of the PHW Group, which comprises 30 companies that produce avian vaccines and poultry for the global market. For more information, contact LAHI at (800) 655-1342 or visit the company's website at www.lahinternational.com.
